Message in a Bottle: Intuitive Reading with Essential Oils

Presented by Nick James

Friday, September 3 at 7:00 pm

This presentation will explore essential oils from their extraction to their uses in healing and wellness, and then delve deeper into the energetic nature of the oils. As we experience each oil we will uncover the human archetype that the oil corresponds with and start to appreciate the wealth of information that is contained within each little bottle. The talk will be brought to life with brief readings of members of the audience, based on their selection of bottles.

ABOUT NICK JAMES

Nick James was born into a family of botanists. Having spent many of his early years following his grandfather in search of the rare plants of Britain, he chose botany as his college major. Graduating from Oxford University with a BA and MA in Botanical Science his career took him in many directions including jewelry and clothing design, but plants were never far from his heart. In 2000, he moved to Sedona to help launch Body Bliss, a company dedicated to searching the globe for the finest and most therapeutically active botanicals and essential oils. Using these organic and wild-harvested ingredients, Body Bliss makes skin care products exclusively for the world's top health spas. Out of his work with plants, and his passion for the esoteric sciences and intuitive reading, Nick has developed a system for unlocking the messages carried within essential oils and for applying this information in daily life.
